

天燈杯

放天燈是新北市平溪區十分寮的傳統習俗，先民透過放天燈的儀式互道平安、祈願幸福。天燈形如上寬下窄的帽子，外部貼覆宣紙可塗繪或書寫，施放時點燃底部煤油紙，天燈受熱即冉冉上昇。

在農曆元宵節夜空裡，一盞盞天燈自大大小小的手中虔敬升起，承載著萬民百姓的祈願，成為北臺灣具特色的傳統慶典之一，透過民俗儀式撫慰人心並帶來希望。

這只陶瓷天燈杯，源自國家教育研究院所在地新北市三鶯地區的本土特色工藝。教育，期望源源給予溫暖支持的動力，讓每個孩子都能得到充分發展，滿抱熱情飛得更高更遠。

Sky Lantern Teacup

The tradition of releasing sky lanterns commenced in Shifenliao of Pingxi in New Taipei City. In the past, people informed each other that they were safe and wished to be blessed by releasing sky lanterns. Wide at the top and narrow at the bottom, a sky lantern looks like a hat. The design of a sky lantern is precise. Rice papers attached on it are for drawing and writing. After igniting the oil papers on its bottom, a heated sky lantern rises up leisurely to the sky.

On Lantern Festival of the lunar calendar every year, the evening sky would be decorated with sky lanterns, rising piously from each small and big hand and carrying wishes from countless people. Releasing sky lanterns is now one of the most distinctive ceremonies in north Taiwan. This folk ritual always comforts people and brings them hope.

This ceramic sky lantern teacup originates from the local workmanship of Sanying area in New Taipei City, where the National Academy for Educational Research is located. It symbolizes education. In our expectation, education is a continuous flow, supporting our children and helping them develop their expertise warmheartedly. So our children can fly higher and further in the future.

藍染杯墊

藍染，顧名思義，是以天然植物藍草為原料，歷經繁複的萃取過程，誕生出優雅、充滿活力的靛青，常作為各類布織品的染料。

依山傍水的三角湧（現名三峽）曾為早期北臺灣主要的藍草種植與藍染工藝品產地，至今，漫步在三峽老街，仍可見各類精緻的藍染織品，以及老少咸宜的手作體驗活動，在化學工業製品充斥的現代社會，更突顯藍染天然草本的永恆之美與充滿變化的生命力。

這只脫俗的藍染杯墊，源自國家教育研究院所在地新北市三峽區的本土特色工藝。孩童，初始如同純淨的素棉布，歷經如同藍染般沉浸、吸收與轉化的教育歷程，呈現各自獨特的氣質，青出於藍且大放光采。

Indigo Dyed Coaster

Indigo dyeing, by the name, its raw material is taken from plants called Chinese Indigo. After multiple extracting process, the graceful and vigorous indigo is born as a natural dye for various kinds of textiles.

In favor of its natural environment, San Jiao Yong (now known as Sanxia) was the main production area of indigo dyeing in north Taiwan. Today, when strolling on old Sanxia street, sophisticated indigo dyed textiles and DIY activities for people of all ages are all around. Owing to its herbal nature, indigo dyeing stands alone in the modern society occupied by chemical products, and unfolds its timeless beauty and dazzling fertility.

This gorgeous indigo dyed coaster comes from the local workmanship of Sanxia in New Taipei City, where the National Academy for Educational Research is located. The pure calico resembles a new born child, who is maturing with different education stages—immersing, absorbing, and transforming. With its unique characteristics, it finally surpasses its predecessor—the color blue from Chinese Indigo—and shines brightly in front of us.
